פרשת תרומה Give One, Get One

דבר אל-בני ישראל ויקחו-לי תרומה מאת כל-איש אשר ידבנו לבו תקחו את-תרומתי

Tell the Israelite people to bring Me gifts; you shall accept gifts for Me from every person whose heart so moves him.

ויקחו לי תרומה התנה כמה פרטים: א) לא אמר ויתנו לי תרומה, שאז היה מ"ע וחייב על כל אחד ליתן, וה' רצה שתרומה זו תהיה מנדבת לב ורצון חפשי לא ע"י שום הכרח, ואם היה הצווי שיתנו, היו נותנים בהכרח ע"י הצווים לכן באר שאינו מצוה שיתנו רק שימנו גבאים לקבל ממי שירצה ניתן - Malbi"m

רבי אלעזר איש ברתותא אומר תן לו משלו. שאתה ושליך שלו

Rabbi Elazar, man of Bartusa, says: Give Him from what is His, for you and yours are His

- Avos 3:7

Remember that the happiest people are not those getting more, but those giving more.

- H. Jackson Brown, Jr.

Let's play a game for a moment. Imagine that you are G-d and you would like a mishkan, a dwelling place to connect with your people while they connect with you. Do you need a building campaign? Fundraising? How about a contractor? No. If you are G-d, you need none of that, and yet Hashem wants to build a mishkan and He comes to us to contribute!

Of course, the secret lay in the wording of the request for us to give to the mishkan. The Torah does not request of the people to give a donation to the mishkan, but to take a donation to the mishkan. What superficially looks like giving isn't actually giving at all. It is actually taking. Hashem does not need us to give anything for Him to build a mishkan, He can do just fine without our help. But, He wants to give us the opportunity to be a part of the building process, to feel ownership of the construction of the mishkan. He does not ask us to give, but asks us to take by giving.

The Mishna in Avos tells us to always bear in mind that everything we have belongs to Hashem and that anything we therefore give Him is simply what belongs to Him already. It is a perspective that our children will need some help to reach.

By the time a child reaches two years, he or she has developed a concept of ownership, the understanding that he, or someone else, can be the owner of specific property. That concept leads the child to want to assert his rights over that property. But, the ownership concept also affords the child, for the first time, the ability to share.

Until the child has a concept that he owns something, there is no reason for him not to let another use it. Once he recognizes his own dominion over his property, then he can make a conscious decision to share what he owns.

Sharing is pro-social behavior. Sharing helps to develop social bonds among people. Sharing is beneficial to the giver in multiple ways. The act of sharing makes us feel good, as we bring joy to others. Also, sharing benefits us when the object of our sharing has that which we wish to have shared with us in return.

We can encourage children to share by helping them see what they have to gain by sharing. We can also encourage them to share by modeling sharing behavior and setting up situations for them to share with us and with others.

As children grow and mature, we can begin to replace their ownership concept with a Torah perspective on ownership. We can remind ourselves as we teach our children that everything that we own is on loan from Hashem. We can teach our children that the best thing they can get in life is what they give. That will bring them true happiness.
